12. Cookies

This section sets out our policy on cookies and any personal data collected by us through their use (“Cookie Policy”).

- What are cookies?

Cookies are data files containing small amounts of information which are downloaded to the device or browser you use when you visit a website. Cookies are then sent back to the originating website on each subsequent visit, or to another website which recognises that cookie.

Please note that we can also collect information about Service usage from data contained in “log files” from third parties. Log files are not cookies; they do not contain any personal data; and they are not used to identify your personal use of the Service. When you request any web page from the Service, web servers automatically obtain your domain name and IP address, but they reveal nothing personal about you and that data is only used to examine Service traffic in aggregate, to investigate abuse of the Service and its users, and/or to cooperate with law enforcement. Such data is not disseminated to third parties, except in aggregate.

- How do we use cookies?

We use cookies in order to ensure our Services function correctly and to improve our understanding of how they are used in order to make improvements. Cookies cannot harm your computer or other device.

- What cookies do we use?

Firstly, we explain what each type is and then, in the table below, we have stated which types we actually use.

In general, there are four different types of cookies.

- Necessary cookies: those required for the operation of our Services, which do not gather information about you that could be used for marketing or remembering where you have been on the internet.
- Analytical/performance cookies: these allow us to collect information about how you use our Services, such as, how you move around our website and if you experience any errors. These cookies do not collect personal data. The information collected is anonymous and is only used to help us improve the way the Services work, understand what interests our users generally and measure how effective our advertising is. Some of the performance cookies we use are issued as part of services provided by third parties, like Google Analytics.

- Functionality cookies: these are used to provide services or to recognise you when you return to our website, for example. These would enable us to personalise our content for you, greet you by name and remember your preferences and improve your visit.
- Targeting cookies: these record your visit to the Service, the pages you have visited and the links you have followed. They are linked to services provided by third parties, such as "Like" and "Share" buttons. The third party provides these services in return for recognising that you have visited our website and are subject to the privacy policy of the third party who set them (e.g. a social media or network service). The third party may subsequently use information about your visit to target advertising to you on other websites and present you with advertisements that you may be interested in.
- How do I manage my cookie settings

Please note that configuring your computer and/or mobile browser to reject 'necessary', 'performance' or 'functional' cookies may severely impact your experience on our website and some parts of our Services will not function at all.

All browsers provide tools that allow you to control how you handle cookies: accept, reject or delete them. These settings are normally accessed via the 'settings', 'preferences' or 'options' menu of the browser you are using, but you could also look for a 'help' function or contact the browser provider. If you are unsure as to how to manage your cookies, please see the following links to view instructions for the most commonly used web browsers:
